The screenshot shows a web form interface. At the top right, there is a timestamp: "Last edited by Joseph Tijerina on January 27, 2024 at 10:17 pm". Below this is a table with several rows. The first row is partially visible, showing a label "ible:" followed by a small square icon. To the right of the table, there are navigation arrows (up, down, and a partial right arrow). Below the table, there is a dropdown menu with a downward arrow icon. To the right of the dropdown menu is a solid orange circle. Below the dropdown menu are five empty rectangular input fields stacked vertically.

The reason you pair with the product, because each product has it's own drop down menus and options.
